Chamber Passes
Institute Homestead Exemption Measure,
Sends It Back to Senate.

Administration supporters in the Georgia house of representatives late yesterday voted, 85, to reject the ways and means committee's recommendation of the 20 per cent beer tax and placed the measure on the calendar for future consideration.

Action came after a stormy session in which Representative W. Wilkes county, the floor leader, assailed what he termed "a lobby" and made a plea for ultimate passage of the measure to restore revenues lost to counties through homestead personal property exemptions.

Exemption Substitute.
The house passed, 125 to opposition, a substitute for the approved homestead exemption bill. The measure now goes back to the senate for consideration. The $300 personal property exemption bill is on Governor's desk. He has announced that he will sign the two at the same time.

Prison Bills.
The senate spent the day handling a number of secondary matters and clearing the way for action on the house-approved bill revising the prices of for autos, buses and trucks.

Measures in the senate include a more bill by Senator Purdum and others carrying provisions of the Purdumday prison reform program, and by the administration.

House ways and means committee recommended a number of bills, including the "Martini" for revising the tax collection system, for passage.

Unanimous vote.
By a unanimous vote, the lection. Dr. John W. Martin, tax expert, told Governor Rivers the new system would bring annual revenue from $9,000 to $40,000, by catching those who have not paid taxes in past.

Favor Tax on Stocks.
The bill of Representative Dupre, to tax each share of 3 cents for every transfer also recommended for passage. The measure would

Legislator Claims First After-Wedding Kiss

Representative Lawrence Brown, of Greene county, claimed the first kiss from his bride after their marriage yesterday at a downtown hotel. The new Mrs. Brown is the former Miss Kitty Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Young, of Atlanta.

GEORGE ASSAILS CROP RESTRICTION

Senator Demands New Farm Bill Be Made Ex- ample Against Privilege

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)— Senator George, of Georgia, took fellow Democrats to task today, declaring that instead of restricting the production of crops they should stick to fundamental doctrines of the party.

He thundered a challenge to an attentive ring of senators to take advantage of the "best opportunity in many years" and make the new farm bill an example of legislation against "special privilege."

Word that "George, of Georgia," was going to make one of his celebrated orations quickly brought senators trooping into the chamber.

Instead of paying benefits to cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and rice producers for curtailing their crops, he said, congress should look upon current overproduction as an emergency, appropriate money to buy up surplus at prices near the cost of production, and recognize the farmer's "equal rights" with industry to run his own business.

Guarantee Cost.
In short, the southerner proposed that the government guarantee farmers the cost of production of their surplus crops but not interfere with their liberty to produce all they wanted.

The senate farm bill, a more restrictive but companion measure to one passed by the house last week, would require farmers to limit the production and marketing of five major crops.

"The philosophy behind this bill is to raise farm prices by restricting production and that is

Atlanta Belle Weds Solon; Vows to Obey

Miss Kitty Young Marries Representative Lawrence Brown, Greene County.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Leaving the word "obey" in the marriage service and using the ring used by her grandmother, Miss Kitty Young, of Atlanta, was married yesterday to Representative Lawrence Brown, of Greene county.

The ceremony, witnessed by ten close friends of the couple, was performed in a downtown hotel room. Judge Alexander W. Stephens officiated, and Representative Ross Thomas, of Chattooga county, acted as best man.

Bride Frightened.
Prior to the ceremony the bride said:
"I am scared to death. After all
I have never been married before.
No, my parents are not here. In fact they do not know anything about the ceremony. I will call them up after it is all over."

She wore a dark blue wool dress trimmed in a lighter shade of the same material. Just before the ceremony the groom-elect gave her a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart roses.

During the ceremony, which was read from the Episcopal service, the couple never shifted their eyes from the face of the white-haired barrister.

"Will you have this man to be thy wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy state of matrimony? Will thou obey him—do you want that word left in there, Miss Young?" asked the judge.

"Obey" All Right.
"That's all right," she said.
When the couple was pronounced husband and wife, Representative Brown slipped the gold wedding ring on his bride's finger.

Then he kissed her.
The ring was the one used by the bride's grandmother, Mary Emma McCown, of Selma, Ala.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Young, met her husband two years ago.
Until the adjournment of the Georgia general assembly, the bride and groom plan to remain in Atlanta. After that they will go to Greensboro, the home of the groom.

FOES OF PAY BILL MASS TO FORCE IT BACK TO 'GRAVE'

Outcome Hinges on Amendments Which Will Be Offered Today;
House Votes 283 to 123
To Consider Measure.

PARTY CHIEFTAINS RALLY FOR FIGHT

Administration, Counting on Some Southern Support, Tries To Outweigh All Combinations

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)
A house split into sectional and economic blocs finally began consideration of the wage-hour bill today and the opposition frankly concentrated upon an effort to defeat the legislation by sending it back to committee.

The extent of its success obviously will be determined by the nature of the changes made in the bill when the time for offering amendments is reached tomorrow.

If the measure can be made objectionable to certain voting groups, the opposition's chances will be greatly enhanced.
Thus, with the opposition coming principally from Republicans and southern Democrats, the problem of the administration leadership is to keep in line enough votes to outnumber that combination at all times. It counts on some southern support, but just how much remains to be determined.

Vote 283 to 123.
The wage-hour bill—under which minimum wages of 40 cents an hour or less and maximum hours of 40 a week or more would be fixed for various branches of American industry—came before the house as the result of a 283-to-123 vote discharging the rules committee from further consideration of the measure. The committee had kept the bill pigeonholed for months.

Almost immediately, six hours of debate was begun, to be followed by amendments, the principal one of which apparently will be a substitute measure to be presented tomorrow by the labor committee, leaving out the five-man, administrative board approved by the senate and substituted a one-man administrator.

Not For All Industry.
In the opening speech for the bill, Chairman Mary Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the labor committee, told her colleagues it was not the intention of the bill to "start fixing wages in all industries, but only in those in which oppressive wages are being paid to a substantial portion of workers."

She said the measure would "establish reasonable standards for the protection of the nation's children and provide for administrative controls which will strengthen state programs." She added:

"If we really mean what we say when we claim we want the best for our children we now have the opportunity to prove it by enacting this bill into law."

From the south came an objec-

Atlantans Urged To Give to

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
Just one more year of help from the Opportunity Fund and Mrs. R. will be moving comfortably along through her own efforts and the help she can get from the five loyal children that she has struggled to hold together in a happy family unit for six hard years.

During 1937, the Opportunity Fund has given Mrs. R. what she has needed—$20 a month—to make a home for her children.

During the year, her oldest boy,
Frank, reached the important age of 18 and after fruitless efforts to find employment that would help to lighten his mother's bur-

BURNING NANKING FALLS TO JAPANESE

Fate of 18 Americans in Battered City in Doubt With All Lines Severed.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—A Japanese communique announcing occupation of Nanking today hinted Japan's army would push on into the heart of beleaguered China. The Japanese gave no word of the 18 Americans still in China's abandoned capital.

Nanking was reported in flames, blanketed under tremendous clouds of smoke.

Japanese spokesmen said they were without information concerning the Americans and handful of other foreigners or the foreign-owned property in the capital, once the pride of republican China.

The Japanese communique, after reciting events of the four months of warfare before capture of Nanking said "although Nanking has fallen, so long as anti-Japanese sentiments exist in China the sentiments of the Japanese people are that hostilities have just begun."

They reported Chinese troops

Price of Beer Rises as Tax Bill Is Signed

Retailers Report Increased Levy Will Be Passed on to Consumers.

Beer-thirsty Atlantans will begin to dig a little deeper in their pockets today as the general assembly's beer tax bill—signed yesterday by Governor Rivers—goes into immediate effect.

Retailers throughout the city and county said they would be forced to pass the tax on to the consumer. In Hapeville 10-cent beer was a thing of the past at noon yesterday, only a few moments after Governor Rivers signed the bill.

Bottled beer that sold yesterday for a dime went up to 13 cents and 15-cent beer advanced to 18 cents a bottle. Other sections

Hirota calls at United States embassy to express Japan's "profoundest apologies" for Pa-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—
The United States presented Japan three stern demands today because of the "indiscriminate bombing" and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and other American ships above Nanking. At the same time President Roosevelt sent expressions of shocked concern to the Emperor of Japan.

While Capitol Hill reverberated to the sinking and a heated discussion rose on the floor of the senate, this government demanded:

Full compensation to the government and victims. (Dispatches to the Navy Department place them at one sailor killed, six missing and fifteen persons wounded.)

Apologies for the incident.
Guarantees against a repetition of such an attack.

A dispatch from Shanghai tonight said 91 persons, of whom 81 are Chinese, were reported dead or not accounted for. They included eight Americans and other foreigners aboard the Panay, and Captain C. H. Carlson, of the Standard Oil boat Meian.

President to Emperor.
The President's personal expression, handed to Japanese Ambassador Hirota Saito by Secretary of State Hull for transmission to the Emperor, was a message from one head of state to another and therefore regarded as of greater importance than the series of protests that have been made by the State Department to the Japanese government, and Chinese government

3 NAVIES RUSHING TO PANAY RESCUE

Japan, England and U. S. Speed To Rescue as 2 Are Identified as Dead.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14.—(AP)— (Tuesday)—Three navies today rushed aid to survivors of four American vessels destroyed Sunday by Japanese air bombers on the Yangtze river above Nanking and tried to complete a count of dead and wounded.

The second fatality on the Panay was made known tonight.
The known dead now are:

Charles L. Ensminger, of Ocean Beach, Cal., storekeeper aboard the sunken gunboat Panay, and Sandro Sandri, an Italian journalist who sought refuge aboard the warship.

Of the 72 reported aboard the Panay in addition to the two dead there are 15 wounded and 48 un-wounded reported safe ashore and seven unaccounted for; of 88 believed aboard Standard Oil ships, three Americans definitely are safe but one American and 81 Chinese are unreported.

While Japan's highest officials in Shanghai and elsewhere accepted full responsibility and offered deep apologies for the bombardment, an account from the scene told how Japanese troops lined the riverside to watch Sunday's tragedy.

Bombing of Panay Was Deliberate, Witnesses of Four Attacks Assert

By JAMES A. MILLS.
Associated Press Correspondent.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 13.—Observers who witnessed the Japanese aerial attack on the United States gunboat Panay late tonight declared the bombing was unmistakably deliberate, precluding possibility of error.

Though the gunboat had American flags painted on her awnings and carried flags on every mast, observers said squadrons of Japanese planes bombed the Panay four successive times beginning at 1:35 p. m. Sunday (11:35 p. m., Atlanta time), Saturday.

The British gunboat Bee, which rushed under forced draft to the scene of the incident, was in radio communication tonight with Hankow, present seat of the Chinese government and the United States embassy.

The Bee reported she had found 12 more survivors from the three Standard Oil Company boats, attacked when the Panay was attacked, who were on the Yangtze river's south bank opposite Hohensien.

American, British and other diplomats expressed bitter indignation at the attack on the Panay.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson still lacked a complete and detailed list of American survivors.

The 54 Americans and three Italians who survived the Japanese attack on the Panay were facing further peril at Hohen, 29 miles up the Yangtze from Nanking, where severe Chinese-Japanese fighting was in progress

U. S. MARINES KEPT IN RESTRICTED AREA TO PREVENT FIGHTS

Clashes With Japanese Feared as Feeling Over Panay Runs High.

PEIPING, Dec. 13.—(UP)—Marines of the United States embassy guard were restricted to the diplomatic quarter—a small area in the heart of Peiping—tonight to prevent possible clashes with Japanese soldiers following receipt of news about the destruction of the United States gunboat Panay and three merchant ships in the Yangtze river by Japanese bombing planes.

Japanese Officers Tie in Race to Kill

TOKYO, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The two Japanese lieutenants racing to see which first could kill 100 Chinese soldiers overtook their mark and tied at 106, the newspaper Nichi Nichi reported today. They agreed to race on Dec. 15.

The standing December 6 was 89 to 78; December 11 it was 86 to 76.

British and American residents, who fear their businesses will be ruined by the present Japanese control of the North China markets, were discussing "definite Anglo-American co-operation" to obtain "recognition of foreign rights in China."

precautions were taken with soldiers of the 15th United States infantry regiment in Tientsin.

Feeling was running high against the Japanese in all the areas they have conquered in North China.

Representatives of all branches of the association will meet tomorrow to set beer prices for cafes and restaurants, LeBlanc said.

Glass Will Decrease.

As for draft beer, in drive-in shops, the price will stay the same but the glass will lose a couple of ounces, it was said.

LeBlanc said it was tentatively agreed to sell draft beer at 10 cents a glass but that the size of the glass would be decreased.

The beer bill, passed by the legislature over protest of retailers throughout the state, places a 48-cent tax on every case of beer a retailer buys. He formerly had to pay an 18-cent tax.

"We will be forced to pass this new beer tax on to the consumer this time," one retailer said.

"When the tax was raised to 18 cents we were able to absorb it. Now, however, we are forced to pass the entire tax on to the consumer."

CO-OP SALE SLATED.

AMERICUS, Dec. 13.—A co-operative food sale will be held here Thursday, with prices announced as follows: Colored hens, 15c; leg-horn hens, 10c; fryers, 18c; stags, 12c; roosters, 10c; turkey hens, 20c; ducks, 12c, and geese, 8c.

Farmers of Sumter, Lee and Webster counties will participate.

BEER PRICE RISES AS TAX INCREASES

of south Fulton county followed suit during the afternoon.

Drive-in sandwich shop operators agreed yesterday to sell the old 10-cent bottle of beer for 13 cents, two for 25 cents, and the old 15-cent bottle for 18 cents, two for 35 cents, J. W. LeBlanc, president of the Atlanta Restaurant Men's Association, announced following a meeting yesterday afternoon.

Representatives of all branches of the association will meet tomorrow to set beer prices for cafes and restaurants, LeBlanc said.

Glass Will Decrease.

As for draft beer, in drive-in shops, the price will stay the same but the glass will lose a couple of ounces, it was said.

LeBlanc said it was tentatively agreed to sell draft beer at 10 cents a glass but that the size of the glass would be decreased.

The beer bill, passed by the legislature over protest of retailers throughout the state, places a 48-cent tax on every case of beer a retailer buys. He formerly had to pay an 18-cent tax.

"We will be forced to pass this new beer tax on to the consumer this time," one retailer said.

"When the tax was raised to 18 cents we were able to absorb it. Now, however, we are forced to pass the entire tax on to the consumer."

Japanese Haste To Placate U. S. Allays Alarm Over Possible War

Both Washington and Tokyo Appear Determined to Avert Official Friction; Panay May Prove To Be Turning Point in Nippon's Foreign Policy.

By KIRK SIMPSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The haste with which Japanese spokesmen assumed responsibility and pledged fullest reparations for the destruction of the American gunboat Panay allayed alarm that a war crisis between the two governments was impending.

While Washington was deeply stirred, there was a notable absence of belligerent utterances, although the seriousness of the situation was fully admitted. Nor did Tokyo dispatches fail to reflect equal concern in Japanese government circles that an incident of gravest possible consequence had arisen in Japanese-American relations.

Pending further official disclosures, it was obvious that both here and in London strong representations to Tokyo were being framed. (British flag vessels have been subjected to similar attacks.)

There is apparently no question about the responsibility for what Japanese officials described as a "mistake" by Japanese aviators, and there is apt to be little diplomatic bickering over reparations and the disciplining of those responsible.

Go Beyond Panay.

Washington observers expect the representations which will be made to Japan will go beyond the Panay and similar incidents. They predict a vigorous attitude both here and in London in demanding neutrals everywhere in China be no longer subjected to such danger.

What confronts Tokyo, as these onlookers see it, is a situation that may result in a turning point in Japanese policy. There have been recent intimations from Japanese sources that civil and military advisers of the government have been at odds about carrying the campaign in China any farther.

There appeared to be some hope that the gravity of the Panay incident might serve to heighten the influence of such groups in Japan as are urging a halt and new efforts toward an armistice.

On the other hand, Japanese military leaders have been contending, according to some reports, that success in the policy of securing Chinese "co-operation" depends on destruction of the Chinese Nationalist army and its leaders.

Even congressional comment on the sinking of the Panay was restricted to avoiding making a serious situation worse. Yet the Tokyo government cannot ignore the fact that this fresh incitement came at a time when there were marked signs of public impatience with Japanese actions. The Japanese boycott movement, supported by organized labor groups, might be strongly stimulated despite all the two governments could do to avert more official friction. The same is true in England and the British commonwealth generally.

Resume Conferences.

Whether there could develop out of the Panay sinking a change of attitude in Tokyo that would permit the unfruitful Brussels conference to resume its attempts for peace in China was not clear. For one thing, the incident might serve only to stiffen the Chinese Nationalist will to resist, because it increased, unquestionably, the tension between Washington and Tokyo and London and Tokyo.

Chinese strategy in risking battle in the Shanghai area has been based, it is believed, on the hope that the perils confronting western nationals would lead to intervention by their governments.

That failed when the Chinese were driven back from Shanghai.

Yet the sinking of the Panay and the new attacks on British vessels might serve to revive Chinese hopes of ultimate help in some form from the United States, England or a group of western powers.

One of Naval Minister Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai's aides sat holding his head in his hands, eyes shut. Another exclaimed: "I would like to resign my life."

"We want peace," said one high naval official said: "We have been doing everything in our power to cultivate the friendship and understanding of the American government and people."

"The extent of our eagerness to keep America's friendship was shown by our efforts to behalf the grounded liner President Hoover. Now I am afraid it is all nullified."

"The erring aviators who bombed the Panay certainly will be disciplined. We intend to do everything possible to make amends. We will not attempt to dodge responsibility through foolish explanations."

Earlier in the day Ambassador Grew had called on Hirota, told him shells were falling near American ships on the Yangtze river and asked that the Japanese use caution.

The British ambassador, Sir Robert L. Craigie, also visited the foreign office in connection with the Japanese shelling of the British gunboat Ladybird at Wuhu. The British embassy was making a personal investigation.

Kills Joy of Victory.

News of the bombing apparently stifled Tokyo's joy over the announced capture of Nanking. Lantern parades which had been scheduled were cancelled. Although great celebrations long had been prepared, the streets were abnormally quiet.

A brief version of the Panay sinking was broadcast shortly after midnight and caused widespread dismay. Officials and private citizens anxious asked their American acquaintances what the United States attitude would be.

Earlier, publication of the story had been suppressed and the incident generally was unknown except for rumors on the stock exchange, where stocks reacted slightly.

At the naval ministry, the staff stood around smoking nervously.

"Mother always gives me Father John's Medicine for my cold. She knows she's used it for years."

cans, radioed to the cruiser Augusta, United States flagship at Shanghai, first details of the sinking of the Panay, the bombing and burning of the Standard Oil tankers. The Bee, first rescue ship on the scene, reported she had rescued ten Americans, seven of them Panay seamen, three European officers of the Standard Oil boats and heard of two others safe ashore.

These reports brought to 63 the total of known survivors from the Panay. Fifty-four, including the 15 wounded, previously had been reported ashore at Hoshien, on the north bank of the Yangtze 35 miles above Nanking, near the scene of the bombing.

Three of the Americans were Standard Oil Company officials—V. V. Shering, of Cadiz, Ohio; John E. Shering, of McGraw, N. Y., and D. S. Goldie. The three Europeans were Captains B. Jorgensen and P. Mender and Engineer Blasina.

In addition, these ships carried two European captains and Chinese crews believed to total 81, making a total of 159 persons aboard the ships.

Boats Bombed on Shore.

The Standard Oil boats reached land and were abandoned by their crews before the final destructive bombing attacks, so it was believed most of those aboard reached safety. (There was no indication any large proportion of the 94 persons, mostly Chinese, not accounted for, had been lost.)

The United States gunboat Oahu was due at Hoshien today. She was steaming under forced draft from Kiangsu, 250 miles up the river. A Japanese minesweeper was reported to have passed Nanking on her way to the scene. A Japanese bombing plane was to leave Shanghai today with doctors and medicines.

Yesterday the Japanese army sent a plane to Hoshien carrying Major General Harada, military attaché here, to supervise Japanese assistance to the victims, prevent Japanese operations in the vicinity from exposing them to fresh dangers and try to untangle the dangerous international snarl along the middle Yangtze.

Vice Admiral L. G. E. Crabbe, commanding the British Yangtze patrol, requested that the Japanese place six officers aboard the Bee to prevent further attacks, but the Japanese were unable to wait for this to be settled and left without Japanese. Aboard her was Rear Admiral R. V. Holt, who is succeeding Admiral Crabbe in command of the patrol.

Writer Is Safe.

A report received in Shanghai by the United States flagship Augusta said that James Marshall, a writer for Collier's who had been aboard the Panay, had reached a hospital at Wuhu and his condition was not believed serious.

The Bee spent the night in the vicinity of Hoshien looking for survivors. It was planned that as soon as possible the Panay's wounded would be put aboard the British ship and taken to Wuhu, 25 miles upstream, where they could be treated at the American Mission hospital headed by Dr. Robert E. Brown.

BROAD STREET BILL REPEAL IS REFUSED

Fulton Solon Demands Probe of Measure.

Highway committee No. 2 of the Georgia house of representatives yesterday voted 13 to 2 against a resolution offered by Representative Guyton, of Effingham, to repeal House Bill No. 14, providing for extension of Broad street in Atlanta.

Following a hearing, the committee took the vote and its report will be filed with the house within the next few days, it was indicated by Representative Pound, of Hancock, chairman.

Committee action followed a statement by W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Department, that the board had proceeded on the project just as it

Plan To Have People Vote on Wars Gains

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)

A constitutional amendment for bidding the United States to declare war unless the people approved in a national referendum gained additional supporters in congress today.

Three representatives signed a petition to force a house vote on the amendment. This brought the total number of signers to 208—only 10 short of the figure necessary to make the petition effective.

Representative Ludlow, Democrat, Indiana, author of the amendment, expressed belief that the bombing of the American gunboat Panay by Japanese airplanes was not responsible for the measure's progress, however.

has on all other permissible undertakings and that Fulton county would not be shown more consideration than would any other county in Georgia. He said the project would not cost the state anything.

The hearing by the highway committee was held concurrently with another hearing by a special investigating committee of the house, of which L. L. Brown, of Peach county, is chairman.

William C. Hastings, Fulton representative, demanded a full probe by the committee of Bill No. 14 and asked the committee to "impeach and prosecute any member of the Georgia legislature found guilty of misconduct in connection with the bill." Other members of the delegation also were present.

'Sandy's' Round With Cold Drinks Ended by Death

"Sandy" failed to make his daily rounds yesterday peddling cold drinks and sandwiches to employees in and around the Terminal station.

For more than 10 years, the little 67-year-old man hadn't missed a day, had never been late making the rounds with his push cart.

John Sands—though few knew him by any name other than "Sandy"—had hobbled behind his cart through heat and cold, rain and snow.

Yesterday morning, his wife found him dead.

Sadness settled along the route he had covered daily. Friends he made on his rounds will send flowers for the funeral at 3 o'clock tomorrow from the chapel of J. Austin Dillon Company. Dr. W. Lee Cutts will officiate and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body of William Williamson, 32, who hoped to become a film cowboy, was found two weeks ago on a roadside near Puente.

Pekor's wife obtained a final divorce decree in DeKalb superior court last week.

MONS CHEERS ON JAPANESE BRITISH SHIPS

Considers Situation Too To Discuss With Parliament.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(P)—Great Britain and the United States are in close concert tonight in the Far Eastern situation.

Members of the house of commons cheered Foreign Secretary Eden's statement that British ships had fired on Japanese after they had been bombed.

Eden told commons the British ambassador to Tokyo had "made the strongest protest" to Japan.

Eden declared Britain was prepared to go only as far as the United States in dealing with the conflict.

Members of parliament, however, immediately began to ask questions on the strength of Britain's base at Hong Kong.

Defence Minister Sir Thomas Inskip refused to discuss the matter.

Tom Williams, Laborite, asked

How Officials Feel About Panay Sinking

President Roosevelt: "Deeply shocked and concerned" at "indiscriminate sinking."

Japanese Ambassador Saito: "We would have had no reason to attack an American naval ship."

Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada: "Accidents to neutrals... are becoming intolerable."

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho: "I do not see anything... that calls for drastic action."

Senator Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina: "We should stop trying to police the world."

Representative Knutson, Republican, Minnesota: "Absolute embargo about Japan."

Representative Maas, Republican, Minnesota: "We should get out of the orient."

Eden told commons today "the seriousness of these incidents needs no emphasis" and asked members not to seek any further statement from the government because of "the grave issues involved."

Members of parliament, however, immediately began to ask questions on the strength of Britain's base at Hong Kong.

Defence Minister Sir Thomas Inskip refused to discuss the matter.

Tom Williams, Laborite, asked

State Department 'Works Extra' on Sinking of Panay

Michael J. McDermott, chief of the division of current information of the State Department, is shown at right at his desk as reporters besieged him in the "wee small hours" yesterday for news on the sinking of the American gunboat in China by the Japanese airmen who also fired on three Standard Oil ships.

Eden how any Japanese explanations could be reconciled "when they say first it was an accident and secondly there were instructions to fire on every ship."

Eden replied, "That is just one of the questions to which I had rather not give a reply."

Sweeping Order. A message received by the admiralty from the gunboat Bee said the Japanese senior officer at Wuhu had ordered all shipping in the Yangtze to remain stationary "or it would be fired on."

Newspapers banner the attack on the American warship after editorials in morning papers had denounced the bombing of the Ladybird.

The Daily Express, ordinarily isolationist, warned, "we put down pirates in the west (in the Mediterranean) and will know how to stop bandits in the east."

The Liberal News Chronicle said Japan must be told "in the strongest terms possible that there is a limit to the patience even of the British nation."

Mass meetings held last night both at Southampton and Hull urged Britain to take the leadership in an international boycott of Japanese goods.

Dock workers at Southampton and Glasgow who refused to handle Japanese cargoes were commended by the meetings.

as well, since the Sino-Japanese undeclared war began.

It informed the Emperor that the President "was deeply shocked and concerned by the news of the indiscriminate bombing of American and other non-Chinese vessels on the Yangtze."

Even before the President could act, the Japanese government pressed every effort to allay the indignation that seemed rising in the capital. Ambassador Saito called early on Secretary Hull to inform him that his government accepted full responsibility for the incident, which he characterized as "a great mistake, a great blunder." He expressed his "deep regret."

Japan Explains Bombing.

On behalf of the Japanese navy, Rear Admiral Tadao Honda, naval attaché at Shanghai, issued the following statement:

"It is my painful duty to make the following announcement: On receipt of information on December 11 that Chinese troops from Nanking were fleeing by boat upriver, the naval air force unit was ordered to proceed to bomb these craft. In the course of these operations yesterday (Sunday) they mistook three Standard Oil ships for Chinese vessels."

"It is most unfortunate that in the course of these operations a United States warship close by was bombed and sunk. The Japanese navy feels the greatest sympathy and the utmost regret for this incident."

Assistance to Survivors.

"The following steps have been taken to afford the utmost assistance to the survivors of the Panay and other craft:

"1. A Japanese warship has been ordered at full speed to the scene, disregarding mines known to be in the Yangtze thereabouts. (This ship at 3 p. m. (Monday) was opposite Nanking and was due at the scene tonight (Monday)."

"2. A flying boat taking relief will be at the scene at daylight."

"3. Forces in the vicinity have been ordered to assist the victims all they can."

Admiral Honda said three naval airplanes took part in the attack. "The fliers returned proudly reporting the achievement of bombing this concentration of ships. But the feeling of accomplishment turned to regret and sadness when they learned their mistake."

Admiral Honda added that the Japanese navy was prepared to punish the men responsible, since "the identity of the fliers naturally is known." Action, he said, would be taken after investigation.

Grew Gets Apologies.

About the same time the United States ambassador to Tokyo, Joseph C. Grew, was receiving the formal apologies of the Japanese government.

A dispatch from Admiral Yarnall, commanding American ships in China, said that the Japanese commander-in-chief had ordered the Japanese gunboat Hozu to proceed from Nanking to help care for American survivors of the Panay and two Standard Oil vessels.

It was believed "regrets" might come directly from the Japanese Emperor, in view of the President's message to him.

Diplomatic circles coupled the visit of British ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay to Secretary Hull and the President's mention of "other non-Chinese vessels" in his message to the Emperor.

They took this to mean that a state of consultation, if not of co-operation, existed between the United States and Great Britain with respect to the incident. Japanese planes, besides sinking the American boats, also hit a British gunboat.

Japan's Action Condemned.

A majority of members of the two houses of congress who expressed their opinion of the incident, either on or off the floor, said the sinking was proof that the United States should have withdrawn its men from the scene of conflict, and that, at any rate, the incident should not germinate into a struggle between the two powers.

There was some strong condemnation of Japanese actions. Senator Key Pittman, who, as chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the senate, is the most authoritative member of both houses on foreign matters, declared in a statement that "these series of accidents to neutrals and neutral vessels are becoming intolerable."

He said it was "little satisfaction" to receive Japanese "regrets," demanded that "some high Japanese officers" be punished, and hinted the incidents might have been deliberate for the purpose of frightening neutral countries into withdrawing completely from China.

Urges Withdrawal.

Senator Smathers, Democrat, New Jersey, sent Secretary Hull an open letter urging withdrawal of all American ships from the danger zone and asking that American citizens be advised to leave.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, threw a new note into the discussion on the floor by intimating that the U. S. S. Panay was on the Yangtze to protect the Standard Oil tankers.

Secretary of State Hull, who spent one of the busiest days of his life as a result of the Panay sinking, clearly expressed his grave view in one of his dispatches to Ambassador Grew in Tokyo.

He cabled:

"Impress upon him (Foreign Minister Hirota) the gravity of the situation and the imperative need to take every precaution against further attacks on American vessels or personnel."

Hull began to work on the incident last night, upon receipt of

JURY COMPLETED FOR MUTINY TRIAL

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A jury was completed in one hour today for the mutiny trial of 14 seamen of the government-owned freighter Algic.

Opening the government's case, T. Barton Harrington, assistant United States attorney, said the prosecution "will not spin a yarn of a cruise of terror, but will offer testimony showing a serious violation of the laws of the United States."

New Officers Are Installed by Chamber of Commerce

Chamber of Commerce officers for 1938 were elected and installed last night at the annual dinner and business meeting of the civic body at the Piedmont Driving Club. Above, from left to right, are C. F. Palmer, newly-installed president, who succeeds Eugene Harrington; J. P. Allen, one of the two vice presidents, and Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the fourth corps area, appointed a director.

Business With Eyes Toward Future Is Called For by Harrison Jones

Chamber of Commerce Adopts Budget Providing Increase in Funds for 1938 Governmental Research; C. F. Palmer Installed as President.

A business world "that has its telescope turned on the future" were called for last night by Harrison Jones as the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce adopted a budget providing for a substantial increase in expenditure of funds for governmental research during 1938, in anticipation of the completion of an extensive survey on city and county governments now being conducted by Dr. Thomas H. Reed, director of the National Municipal League.

C. F. Palmer was elected and installed president for 1938 at the banquet meeting, held at the Piedmont Driving Club.

$9,815 Expenditures. The budget calls for an expenditure of $9,815 for governmental research with the provision that a Governmental Research Bureau be established as a regular department of the chamber.

The plan also provides for the employment of an experienced director to work with a committee and follow through—first, on major recommendations of the Reed report, if and as they become part of an approved program, and second, on changes and economies in city and county governments which require no legislation. The total 1938 budget of the chamber amounts to $58,366.20.

Declaring that Atlanta has been "too introspective" in its business, Jones made a vigorous appeal for a business "that has a philosophy of life—a business with atmosphere and character."

Must Look Forward. "The narrow, circumscribed area of business must be obliterated and we must look forward," he said. "Atlanta is still the hub of the southeast, but whether it remains so depends upon the businessmen of Atlanta. There are brains enough to do it, but with those brains there must be coupled the desire to do."

Another fault of business, the speaker declared, is that it often contains too much realism. "We ought to be realistic in everything that we do, but with the realism there must also be a certain amount of idealism." He pointed to the fact that businessmen are frequently unmindful of their employees and care nothing about what the public thinks of their product. "Such businesses," he said, "are doomed to failure."

He pointed to the fact that the outstanding businessmen of Europe today are looking forward to the unrest that may come in the future and are shaping their plan accordingly.

"The farmer has learned that there are years when he can't make a good crop," Jones pointed out. "He has learned to take the good times with the bad, but when we businessmen have done what we should and then find restrictions or regulations placed around us, we have no philosophy of life."

100 LIVES ENDANGERED BY COTTON SNOW FIRE

LAGRANGE, Dec. 13.—A near tragedy was averted here when fire originating in cotton decorations on a banquet table was extinguished before it could spread to dangerous proportions. The banquet had assembled 100 members of a Sunday school class and their guests.

The fire, which resulted when a candle burning low ignited cotton decorations used to represent snow, was speedily extinguished and the banquet was resumed.

OLD JOHN SLEEPS GOOD NOW

Old John says, "I had to get up 5 or 6 times each night. I flushed the kidneys as I do the bowels. I helped nature get rid of waste and excess acids which can cause the irritation that wakes you up. I got 35¢ worth of Juniper oil, buchu leaves, etc., made into little green tablets." Just say Buksels to any drug store. Locally at Jacobs' Pharmacy.—(adv.)

EX-ATLANTAN HURT IN OVERTURNED CAR

Mrs. John Lewis Holmes, former resident of Atlanta, was cut and bruised last night when an automobile, in which she was riding alone, skidded and overturned near St. Augustine, Fla.

Her husband is a retired Atlanta insurance man. When residing in Atlanta, they lived at 14 Cherokee road. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes have resided in Apopka, Fla., for the past five years.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP SOFT DRINK TAXES

of federal income taxes from state income tax returns; Representative Grayson's measure to enable counties to levy for social security costs, and Representative Key's bill to reduce the tax on wine.

T. Grady Head, revenue commissioner, declared the proposed reduction in wine taxes will increase the annual income from this source. The new scale would be 5 cents per gallon on Georgia natural wine; 2.5 cents a gallon on Georgia wine above 14 per cent alcohol; 30 cents on out-of-state natural wine, and 50 cents per gallon on out-of-state wine above 14 per cent.

Mario Smith, Atlanta lawyer, and Robert Sams spoke against a proposed increase in the chain store tax, while Sam M. Hirsch appeared against increases in the cigar tax. No action was taken on these two proposed tax measures.

The action on the soft drink tax was marked by a brief but vitriolic debate.

Representative Sutton was added by Representative Pound, of Hancock, and Lanier, of Richmond, while the committee action was supported by Representatives Elliott, of Muscogee; Carmichael, of Cobb; Lanier, of Richmond; Weaver, of Bibb; Hastings, of Fulton, and Grayson, of Chatham.

Senator Peabody, of Gibson, introduced a similar resolution applying only to counties.

Yeomans Praised.

In the house, Representative Durden praised Attorney General M. J. Yeomans for giving an opinion that a house liquor bill was unconstitutional. Representative George Sabados had criticized Yeomans on the floor last week for what he termed "rendering opinions at random."

The prison reform bills included prohibition of the sale of wine, beer or other intoxicants or the operation of any dance hall within one mile of any penal institution, farm or camp, elimination of the term "chain gang" from the statutes and substitution of the word "public works camps" and taking from juries the power to fix sentences, allowing them to pass only upon the guilt or innocence of defendants and leaving the punishment to the trial judge.

Another would provide for carrying out of sentences of electrocution by the State Board of Penitentiaries.

The Senate Relief Act.

The Senate Relief Act, 34 to 0, a bill amending the public assistance to aged act to strike out a section requiring recipients of aid to give the state a lien on any property held.

It also approved, 37 to 0, a bill by Senator Patten amending the state's alimony law to permit revision of decrees by the court where it appears the financial status of one or the other party has changed materially.

It defeated an attempt by Senator Hardman to bring before the senate a bill to limit state ad valorem taxation to two mills instead of five mills as at present. The bill had been reported unfavorably by the senate finance committee.

Senator Lindsay prevented defeat of a proposed constitutional amendment, authorizing pensions for school teachers, by getting it tabled for future action.

In the house, Speaker Harris submitted a bill to change the method of levying and collecting corporation taxes. The measure would fix a tax of 80 cents per $1,000 on the capital stock of corporations instead of the graduated scale of taxes now in the general tax act.

Grass Fire Razes Baptist Church Here

Efforts of two deacons of the Shady Grove Baptist church to beautify the grounds of the institution on Evans drive, in southwest Atlanta, resulted yesterday in its total destruction when a grass fire ignited the building.

Will Traylor, of 1185 Osborne street, S. W., chairman of the board of deacons, and Tom Cleveland, 1184 Osborne street, S. W., told police, they reported, that the high grass was marring the beauty of the church and that they were burning it out when the building caught fire. Firemen found the structure a mass of flame when they arrived.

RIVERS' SON BEGINS JOB ON JANUARY 1

To Be Director of Young Democratic Clubs.

Ed Rivers Jr., son of the Governor, will begin active service January 1 as regional director of Young Democratic Clubs of America. It was announced yesterday at Washington by Pitt Tyson Maner, president of the organization.

Rivers will have charge of Georgia, Alabama and Florida. He recently visited Washington as a delegate to a social conference, and while there conferred with national officers of the group and with members of the Democratic national committee.

Maner will be principal speaker at the Jackson Day dinner in Atlanta next month. He commended the Georgia plan of organization as a "model for the nation," according to the announcement relative to Rivers.

EMORY PROFESSOR STARTS FUND TOUR

Dr. White Leaves for Eight-Month Study of Education Overseas.

Holding a Julian Rosenwald traveling fellowship, Dr. Goodrich
C. White, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Emory University, left last night for New York, from where he will sail December 23 on the Aquitania for an eight-month study of the development of educational centers in Europe.

Dr. White was awarded the fellowship, it was said, not only because of his achievements as an educator but also because of the Rosenwald Fund's interest in developing a University Center in Atlanta through co-operation of Emory, Agnes Scott and Georgia Tech.

Spending two and a half months
of his time in the Netherlands, Dr. White will visit the Universities of Utrecht, Amsterdam and Leyden. While in England for four months, he will study the conditions and technique of Oxford, Cambridge, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham and Cardiff Universities.

He will spend most of his time at provincial institutions rather than at Cambridge and Oxford, since the problems of the younger universities in the larger cities in England correspond to those at Emory.

His first two weeks will be spent in London making contacts before going on to The Netherlands. He will remain in The Netherlands until April 1, returning to the British Isles. The last four months of his trip will be spent in a tour of western Europe.

A member of the committee on regional planning and research of Institute on Southern Regional Development of Social Science, Dr. White plans to co-ordinate his previous work with his forthcoming study.

Before leaving New York, the Emory professor will attend a meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa senate, of which he is a member, at Columbia University. He was entertained by the Emory faculty at a dinner at the University cafeteria recently and presented a traveling bag by that organization.

Similar to McGill's.
Dr. White's fellowship is similar to that awarded to Ralph Mc-Gill, sports editor of The Constitution, who left for Europe last month.

Of the 19 southerners who received fellowships last spring, nine were graduates of Emory. All were granted to southerners who intend to remain in the south.

Also dean of the Emory graduate school, Dr. White graduated from Emory in 1908. He received his master's degree from Columbia in 1911 and his doctor's from Chicago in 1927.

Professor J. G. Stipe, registrar at Emory, is acting dean in Dr.
White's absence.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 14, 1937.

THE BIRTHDAY FESTIVAL

Every indication points to a bigger and more successful celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday in Georgia this year, than ever before. For several years it has been customary to hold public parties over the country, all proceeds going to the fund for the control and eradication of infantile paralysis.

This year, while the parties will in no sense be abandoned, there will be varied types of entertainments, designed to attract all types of people. There will be old-fashioned box-suppers in many places and there'll be square dances in addition to the more formal affairs. There'll even be "Big Apple" parties for the Big Apple-ing addicts.

Under the chairmanship of Edgar Dunlap, of Gainesville, plans for the Georgia celebration are going ahead on far more elaborate a scale than ever before. It is hoped to have some entertainment in every community, urban or rural, large or small, throughout the state. In Atlanta and the other larger cities there will be several events in each.

Special programs are being arranged, under the divisional chairmanship of M. D. Collins, state superintendent of education, for every college and every public school in the state while, under the leadership of Mrs. John A. Rollison, of Waycross, women's organizations, clubs, garden clubs and others, are being contacted to take part in all programs.

THE SINKING OF THE PANAY

Japan displays no iota of hesitation in admitting full responsibility for the sinking of the miniature United States gunboat, the Panay, in the Yangtze river. While individual blame has not yet been officially placed, the Japanese admit it was missiles from their guns and their planes which sent the American naval vessel to the bottom.

Such an incident was inevitable while American ships remained in the area of battle between Japanese and Chinese. When planes, high in the air, and guns at long range are pouring shells into a disputed area the chances are 100 to 1 against any vessel, combatant or neutral, escaping indefinitely.

It is deplorable that the Panay was struck, but its loss is not necessarily cause for undue excitement in America.

The United States government has apology and guarantee of reparation for damages resulting from the attack on the Panay.

Therefore, as a nation, we must continue to forbear, despite the temptation to lose our heads.

STATE POLICE PROVE WORTH

The Georgia state highway patrol, in the first 73 days of its authority, arrested 363 persons for reckless or drunk driving, or other traffic violations, and recovered 29 stolen cars and property valued at $21,991 was returned to owners.

Such a record alone more than justifies the establishment of this state-wide police force, to patrol the highways and enhance the safety of their users by enforcement of proper driving laws and regulations.

While the stolen property recovered and the property damage prevented is in itself a fine record, it is unimportant in comparison to the lives which have, unquestionably, been saved.

Of the 363 arrests made, 160 were on charges of drunk driving, while 54 were for speeding and reckless driving of an automobile.

The potential deaths which, out of such a number, would have occurred cannot be estimated. That there would have been 180 drunken drivers and 54 speeders to drive, unchecked, on modern highways without death claiming innocent victims of others' criminal folly.

Significant is the fact that, with highway police patrolling the road between Atlanta and Athens on days when football games were played in Sanford stadium at the University of Georgia, there was not a single fatality. In previous years that highway, admittedly one of the most dangerous in the state, has been dotted with the remnants of wrecked cars and there have, almost invariably, been a full quota of dead and injured on every football Saturday.

Thus it is evident that the value of the state police cannot be measured alone by their record of arrests, etc. The mere sight of the uniform evidently conduces to more careful driving. As Major John C. Carter, commander of the unit, points out in his report of December 1, "we must come to the conclusion that people just drive more carefully when state troopers are around."

Nor hath hell any fury like a determined holiday shopper with her elbows honed.

DRUNK WITH POWER

The Italian announcement of withdrawal from the League of Nations is, in itself, nothing but a technicality. Actually, Italy has been a member in name only, of that international organization, ever since the affair in Ethiopia. Mussolini has repeatedly evidenced his scorn for the League and all its pronouncements and, in both Ethiopia and Spain, has ignored and flouted its authority. Formal withdrawal makes no real difference in the European situation.

There is, however, real significance in one feature of the incident of Saturday in Rome. That was found in the speech by Il Duce himself, in the manner in which his expressed thoughts revealed his temper and lust for power.

"We have air, land and sea arms, abundant and tempered by two victorious wars," he proclaimed, "but above all we have the heroic spirit of our revolution which no power in the world can break."

Such language is the language of a dictator drunk with personal power, distorted by ambition and reckless of the fate either of his own people or of the world. It is the language of a would-be Alexander, a Caesar or a Napoleon. And Il Duce would do well to ponder the fate of these three, history's mightiest conquerors, ere he pushes further in his own lust for aggrandizement.

Mussolini has served his country in many ways that are creditable. Particularly in the earlier period of his control, he contributed to the material well-being of his people. But, since then, he has led Italy on a headlong course.

He has, as impartial investigators have found, built his power upon the grinding poverty of the masses of the Italian people. He has doomed them to virtual slavery and has forced upon them conditions of life that would be intolerable to a free and informed people.

But of such is the material from which conquerors are made. They drive their iron-shod steeds over the prostrate bodies of sacrificed humanity and the cup from which they quaff the heady wine of martial glory is shaped as a skull, its contents a ghastly, sanguine red.

Then, after their brief moment upon the pinnacle, follows the inevitable debacle as an outraged nation and world rise to rid themselves of an evil. And one more conqueror goes his lonely, disillusioned way to exile or to death.

Mussolini may be leading his people to a brief intoxication of power upon the world's stage. But, more surely, he is leading them to suffering and eventual collapse.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Among all the appeals for Christmas giving there is none that carries a warmer call for human sympathy than the campaign for Christmas seals.

The money derived from these little stamps, to be affixed to mail during the Christmas season, is used to help poor victims of tuberculosis. Each stamp represents a ray in the vista of new hope for life and health that is held out to sufferers from the dread, wasting disease.

There is no more pitiful human fate than that of the tubercular. They hope against hope that something may be done to arrest the disease which is daily leading their weakening steps toward the grave. They fight, desperately, for health and for life and, when lack of this world's goods adds its fearful handicap to their struggle, they turn beseeching eyes to others better able to provide the financial sinews they must have.

Steady progress is being made in the war against tuberculosis. There is real hope today for thousands who, a few short years ago, would have been doomed. But the devoted workers who are slowly winning the fight are harassed by lack of money.

One-third of the total expenses of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association is dependent upon the Christmas seal campaign. The quota set is $12,000, of which approximately one-half has now been received.

Atlanta should quickly make up the balance, in order that the white-faced men, women and little children who flock to the association's clinic may know, as quickly as possible, that the treatments upon which they depend for life can be continued for another year.

With sub-zero temperatures in parts of Dixie, and cattle thieves reported on the Ohio plains, you can no longer depend on your sense of direction, even.

Editorial of the Day

ATLANTIC AIRLINES
(From the Dallas Morning News.)

One reason given by the Maritime Commission for discouraging American construction of ships like the Queen Mary is the belief that these luxury liners will feel most keenly the competition of Atlantic airlines that may be in operation soon.

While the faster steamships have cut the Atlantic passage down to four days, flying boats now under construction promise to trim it to one day.

Although the Hindenburg disaster temporarily ended dirigible passenger service on both the North Atlantic and the South Atlantic, test flights made this year give hope for the starting of regular commercial flights by heavier-than-air craft next year. No commercial passenger has yet been transported across the Atlantic in a flying boat, but Caribbean and Pacific airlines are proving successful.

With four countries preparing for Atlantic transport service with heavier-than-air craft, the Germans are also hoping to resume regular dirigible flights with new airships that may be filled with American helium. Perhaps the most hopeful factor in the present situation is the interest being taken in transoceanic aviation by American steamship companies. One steamship line already owns a large interest in an airline, and at least two others are preparing to enter the aviation business.

If governmental subsidies are as available to oceanic lines as to those carrying mail over land, there should be little further delay in the opening of Atlantic service. Scheduled flights that bring London within 24 hours of New York would be certain to have considerable patronage.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

PRESIDENT'S HEALTH O. K. WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—President Roosevelt is well. He is fit. He is clear-eyed and healthy. His bothersome tooth has healed so admirably that his personal physician, Dr. Ross T. McIntire, said a few days ago he had seldom seen such recuperative power in a man of the President's age. A-I shape was the way Dr. McIntire described the President's general condition. Although Dr. McIntire is a respected and able practitioner, his obiter dicta would not now be worth repeating were it not for the silly drivel which is being increasingly talked about the President. It seems to originate chiefly in brokerage offices, downtown restaurants and other places where busy men have time to let loose their wagging tongues—thus substantiating the theory of a Columbia professor that another sort of story which ought not to be repeated is invented chiefly in brokerage houses and jails.

A fair sample was a recent experience of Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy, of the Maritime Commission. A business acquaintance got the New Deal's tame capitalist on the long distance telephone from New York. The businessman addressed Kennedy in hushed tones, asking him if he "could talk." Kennedy replied, "Sure, I always can."

TREMULOUS INQUIRY "Well, then, I want to ask you about the President," said the businessman, "the business man, isn't he?"

Mr. Kennedy's reply is not quotable. That particular businessman was so thoroughly disabused of his notion that his ears were severely blistered, but there were plenty of others who asked the same sort of question and told the same sort of story while the President was laid up with his bad tooth. Indeed the presence of a rumor that the President had been "across Jordan" for two days was one of the reasons for the bedside press conference he held during his illness.

The mere notion that the demise of the President could be concealed for 48 hours, while the country, presumably, was run by Mrs. Roosevelt and Jimmy, is so fantastic that it's funny. But it by no means tops some of the other rumors, either in nastiness or in nonsense.

FOLKLORE OF MORONIA Perhaps the oddest of these concoctions of the mass imagination was that one about somebody's aunt. It was widely current a year or so ago. As the aunt went, this man's aunt—why aunt?—has never been explained—was an overnight guest at the White House. She had a bedroom opening on the White House's upstairs corridor. Along about 4 a. m. she was awakened from a peaceful sleep by the sound of "someone barking like a dog." Her curiosity was aroused. She rose, and looked out into the hall, where she saw "someone being hustled through the President's door." Authorities in the folklore of Moronia trace the origin of this elaborate gem of untruth to James Thurber's celebrated cartoon of the seal in the bedroom.

Nevertheless, this rumor-mongering has its serious side, which is why it is worth bringing the whole thing into the open. Not so very long ago a man of some national note spoke at a New York luncheon meeting of one of the service clubs. His hinting theme was, "You'd Better Get Acquainted With Garner," and his speech was actually broadcast.

The rumors have all sorts of variations, from stories about fits of wild laughter at press conferences, to legends about attacks of hysteria. But they are all the same venomous old hokum, the sort of thing that makes ordinary partisan politics look like the pretty doings of the children in "Peter Pan." A relative of a day of the presidential rotation is the best way to show how impossible it is for the President to bark like a dog, or indulge in wild outbursts of laughter, or have fits of hysteria, and still conceal these wonderfully imagined peculiarities.

TYPICAL DAY Last Friday the President waked at a reasonable hour, breakfasted and read the newspapers in bed. Then he dressed and went to the White House offices. The callers began coming at 10:30 a. m., and at 11 o'clock he held a press conference at which well over 100 reporters, many of them representing newspapers hostile to him, saw and questioned him. After the press conference, the callers began coming again, and he had a luncheon date. He saw more callers in the afternoon, including his ex-opponent, Governor Alfred M. Landon; the Republican senator from Kansas, Arthur Capper, and three members of the house ways and means committee, whom he helped with their milled tax revision. In all, he talked business with over 140 people during the day.

Late in the afternoon he had a brief rest, and then there was an informal dinner at the White House. Following dinner he did some work in his study and went to bed. A relative of a day of the presidential rotation is the best way to show how impossible it is for the President to bark like a dog, or indulge in wild outbursts of laughter, or have fits of hysteria, and still conceal these wonderfully imagined peculiarities.

None of the visitors Friday noticed anything odd about the President. Indeed, Governor Landon remarked later on how splendidly well he seemed. Yet no doubt within two months somebody in a suburb of Kalamazoo will be quoting one of the Friday visitors as saying that the President barked like a sheep.

Shocks at Postoffice.

She wanted to send a Christmas package to the Philippines, by air-mail. The rate is 20 cents an ounce. And her package weighed 36 ounces.

She nearly fainted when told the postage would total $7.20.

How Do They Get That Way?

She bustled into an overcrowded luncheon, pushed ahead of everyone else and appropriated the first vacated seat although there were others who had been standing in line for 15 minutes or more. Fortunately the one who should have had the seat was a good-natured man. He thought it funny, grimaced and laughed. If she hadn't been a woman, with gray hair, she might not get away with such rudeness.

However, inasmuch as she is a woman and her hair is gray, I guess she'll continue trading on it from now on.

To Hear Ourselves
As Others Hear Us.

It was Robert Burns who longed for the power to "see ourselves as others see us." Maybe that magic ability hasn't yet come to the world, but nowadays it is certainly possible to hear ourselves as others hear us. And, believe you me, it is a most intriguing experience.

The other day I had occasion to make a recording of my own voice. A kindly sort of fellow named Bruce Waggoner performed the operation.

I talked into a microphone for sometime. Then went into the mechanical department of the place, watched Waggoner lift away the wires of a record—he said those fine hairlike strands represented that portion of the record's surface which I had displaced with my voice—brush the record clean, put it on a sort of a phonograph, adjust a few switches and dinges, start it rotating, and lo, my own voice came through the loud speaker.

It didn't sound in the least as I have always imagined it should sound. Much better, in fact. It came out of that record clear, and rounded and rather resonant. Flattering, I thought it. I had feared there'd be too much silliness to the effect. There wasn't. Or that some words would stumble, as it were, coming off the lips. They didn't.

In fact, I'm quite conceited about it all. But it sounded as though it was a total stranger talking at me.

Try it, someday. You'll be surprised.

A Snowball
From Pennsylvania.

An Atlanta woman has a sister who resides in Pennsylvania. A letter came from that sister, one day last week. In it the sister wrote: "It is snowing here and I enclose one snowball for you."

The Atlanta woman looked out of her window and saw the ground white with snow. "Grand," she exclaimed, "my snowball came."

You remember that morning last week, don't you?

Oxford Group
Visitations.

Several times I have been visited by members of that rapidly growing organization known as the Oxford Group. They, you know, are seeking to bring about a reawakening, all over the world, of the ideals of living taught by Christ. They have a creed that calls for sharing their troubles and their joys with others. Of admitting their own faults and failures, not in public, but to the individual wronged. And of absolute honesty in word and thought and act, in every contact of their lives.

I have noticed one thing about all the Oxford Groupers I have met. There is a strange impression of uplift, about them. They bear the appearance of people superlatively clean, mentally, morally and physically. They seem to radiate, as it were, a glow of happiness and their very expression, the look in their eyes, appears to bring a refugeance from within.

This, I hope, is altogether genuine. But, unfortunately for me, at any rate, there is such uniformity of this peculiar manifestation that I have come to expect it and to, subconsciously, think of it somewhat as an assumed personality.

I wonder whether it is a genuine glow from finer spirits, or whether it is donned just as an actor dons a character role?

World's Window

The Anglo-French
Conversations.

NEW YORK.—Monsieur Chauvins, the French prime minister, fairly bubbled with optimism at the close of the first day's conversations he and his colleagues, the foreign minister of France, Yvon Delbos, had with the leaders of the British government. They had found, he told the press boys who gathered around, a remarkable unanimity of sentiment. Britain and France were in perfect agreement. There was good hope that we were, at last, on the road to a general European settlement.

A rather vague statement and a statement that, in my estimation, harbors no good. Whenever diplomats talk about unanimity and perfection of accord, it is generally the other way around. When they gave out statements like that during the war, it meant that the allied generals and statesmen were fighting like cats and dogs behind the scenes. But then, it is an old maxim of that master of modern diplomacy, Niccolò Machiavelli. "Make believe that the opposite of what takes place is happening."

Britain Still World's Greatest Colonial Power.

That there is indeed a bad fly in the ointment of Anglo-French entente, became clear a few hours later when one of the observers at the conference let the cat out of the bag by saying that the French and English statesmen had achieved a community of views only by leaving out of their conversations any controversial matter. For instance, to the intense surprise of the British, the Frenchmen expressed their willingness to discuss the colonial question with Germany; immediately the British pulled in their horns, so to speak. For although they are quite willing to pacify and satisfy and buy off Germany, it is Britain which is the main colonial power in the world and also the power which copped the overgrown bulk of Germany's colonial possessions after the war.

It seems that the British incline more to the view that Germany could be satisfied in eastern Europe, that is to say by giving her what is known as a free hand in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and the Soviet Union. But on this point the French are not in agreement. Czechoslovakia and Rumania and the Soviet country are allies of France. France can't just give them up like that. No doubt, France could be made to annul the Franco-Soviet pact of mutual assistance, but in return for that she would want extra strong guarantees from Britain, nothing less than a military alliance. Without allies France is not a first class power and becomes altogether dependent on England. It is therefore not likely that France will accept such a deal at once, for it means nothing less than stepping down from the position of first place in the European continent.

Procrastination.

The statesmen, seeing their attempts to come to some arrangements, heading straight for the rocks, thereupon took another course. They resorted to the well-tried trick of procrastination. They agreed that they would discuss the German problem some time in the future. What was said on the subject of Italy is not known. That is another delicate matter which needs careful handling. Mussolini has been exerting so much energy in the last few years and is in a plight economically that he is not likely to be satisfied with some reassuring statements. Not words, action, that is to say money is what the Duce wants. Britain is willing to come across with the loan, but demands certain concessions.

And there is just the point: neither Hitler nor Mussolini are prepared to make the slightest concession. They argue that that which they ask be given to them as by right and not as a basis for concessions on their part. The German press said this outright on the day following the initiation of the Anglo-French conversations. In this the voice of the German government. The Frankfurter Zeitung asked plainly: "Are the two governments (Paris and London) aware of it that Germany wants her rights and is not prepared to barter?"

In the final analysis there seems to be little real cause for optimism. The only definite gain is that the powers agreed to discuss German colonial claims, but for that intend to call in Holland, Belgium, Portugal and some others. In other words: England and France are not going to disgorge alone. Holland and Belgium and Portugal may also contribute to the pacification of Germany, although not they but England, Japan, France, the Union of South Africa, Australia and New Zealand are the ones who took Germany's colonies after the war.

outrage, and the city should not pay for it."

A Man From Mars Learns Curious Things About the Behavior of Earth People

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The man from Mars stood on the roof of a skyscraper watching the activities of men in fascinated horror. "My friend," he said to his guide, "you earth people have strange and dreadful customs. Over there I see men in trenches trying to shoot one another, and at intervals they rush together and stab another with bayonets. Why do they do it?"

"They do it," said the guide, "because of their beliefs. Some believe in freedom and equality and greater opportunity for the poor, while others believe all men should be controlled by state and the state itself controlled by them."

"It is very strange," said the man from Mars. "And here is other puzzling matter. This land seems quiet, yet over yonder thousands of men building guns and battleships and fighting for why do they do it?"

"That, also, is because of their belief," said the guide. "believe in what is called preparedness. The idea is to have weapons to discourage anyone who might wish to attack them. 'This earth of yours seems a dangerous place,' said the man from Mars. 'Look yonder at those yellow men. The taller are falling like straws before a scythe. And some are in the dropping bombs that fall among old people and women and children and blast them into bloody fragments. What in the name of cency is the explanation?'"

"It's their belief again," the guide explained. "Some of them believe they have a right to rule their own country without interference by foreigners, and the others believe they have a right to take the land and wealth they need and kill anybody who tries to interfere."

"What a world!" cried the man from Mars. "Strife, envy, war, fear, robbery and murder wherever I look. Yet many people otherwise engaged this evening. Down south I see fireworks, everywhere in this and other lands I see gay decorations on green trees and wreaths of holly and signs of feasting. And the triumphant music in your temples. What does it mean?"

"It is another belief," said the guide. "They believe in Jesus. 'And who is he?' asked the man from Mars.

"He is our Savior," said the guide, "who taught us peace, good will toward men and forgiveness and unselfish service. We are celebrating His birth today."

ALLEGIANCE TO THE FLAG

Editor Constitution: I have taken the stand that it should be considered a legal offense for anyone to refuse to salute the American flag. It appears particularly necessary where children are concerned because we know that when they refuse to salute the flag they are not voicing their own sentiment but the sentiment of adults.

The religious stand on which children are putting their refusal should give every American great food for thought. What kind of religion is it that teaches disloyalty to the home and the parent? Our country either through birth or adoption is our home and our parent. It protects us in time of peace and war. We elect those we think most fitted to represent us and make this protection possible.

It has been proved the world over, time without end, that there has to be a common law for the good of all. Our country is that law, and when a religion says that the worshipers in it should not pledge allegiance to the symbol that stands for the common good of all, they are going against one of the finest teachings of Jesus Christ that "We should love our neighbor as ourselves." When we salute the flag or pledge allegiance to it we are not merely expressing our own views but those which should be for the benefit of all.

As a united nation we have a recognized and respected place in the world. Any condition contrary to this must play havoc with the peace and happiness of the American home. It is incidentally bringing upon us the ridicule of our neighbors.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

HE SEES US.

Dr. Fred Brown, of Knoxville, Tenn., known to many Georgians, has written a paragraph about Jesus standing over against the treasury, based on the passage in Mark, "And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury..." Says Dr. Brown:

"Jesus sat over against the treasury then—He stands over against the treasury today, tonight, and He observes how we give—how much we give and in what spirit we give. I wish that fact could find lodgment in our hearts. How it would ennoble our thoughts of giving! There would be little chance of anyone grumbling any more about giving money to the Lord and the taking of the offering would be one of the joyful moments of worship. I do not know how one is to subtract the references to money from the teachings of the Bible."

I have long ago been convinced from experience and observation that the happy people are the giving people—the people who give without thought of reward, save the prayerful wish that it may be a blessing to those who receive and an honor to Him who gave all for us. What is true of the individual is equally true of the church. A giving church is a growing church—a church that constrains the world.

Jesus sees us when we give. Jesus sees us when we withhold. Selah.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT BY A. B. & C. GROUP

Railway Denies Interference in Forthcoming Employee Election.

A hearing will be continued today in federal district court here on the petition for an injunction against the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast railway brought by the Railway Co-operative Association, an employee organization.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood granted attorneys time to amend the petition. The association asks the court to order the railroad not to "intimidate, coerce or interfere with" employees in an election to be held under auspices of the United States Mediation Board.

Railroad counsel, John A. Hines, opposed the petition on the grounds employees already are protected by a federal law against such interference with an employee representation election, that his company is innocent and that such an injunction is unnecessary.

Frank A. Wilkinson, Birmingham attorney for the employees' organization, citing supreme court decisions in railroad labor cases, said the injunction was within the province of the court.

The Railway Co-operative Association claims to be the organization representing the majority of the railroad employees and in its petition challenges the validity of the Engineers' Association of the A. B. & C. organized this year.

Its petition would deal with an election to be held by the mediation board to determine which organization shall be the bargaining agency.

Hines told the court the A. B. & C. would abide by the election. He said the matter had already been placed before the mediation board.

O'HARA'S NEWSPAPER SOUGHT BY SYNDICATE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 13.—(P)—An offer to buy the Providence Tribune Company, publishers of the Providence Star-Tribune, was filed in superior court late today on behalf of David Stern, New York and Philadelphia publisher, and his associates.

The afternoon newspaper was petitioned into receivership last month by Walter E. O'Hara, its former publisher.

Action on the offer, total amount of which was not disclosed, was postponed until Saturday.

Girl Loses Fight In Highest Court On Flag Salute

Atlanta school students must salute the American flag if they remain in school.

That, in substance, was the verdict of the United States supreme court yesterday in sustaining a contention of the Atlanta Board of Education that the matter was not one for federal action. The court dismissed the suit brought in behalf of 12-year-old Dorothy Leoles, dismissed from school here when she failed to comply with the school board rule.

The federal court decision was taken on the following grounds: "For want of a substantial federal question."

Through her attorneys, the girl contended the requirement denied her constitutional "right to worship God according to the dictates of her own conscience."

Her family was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses when the incident occurred about two years ago. Her father told board of education members "to salute the flag is an act of obeisance or worship of other than Jehovah God and therefore a sin forbidden by God's word and teaching."

Board attorneys asked for dismissal of the suit "for want of jurisdiction" or affirmation of the Georgia supreme court decree that states can "control their public schools."

JUSTICE MUCH IMPROVED.

WALLACE IGNORES BUREAU'S ATTACK

Edward O'Neal Says Big Supplies Will Mean Low Market Prices.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(P)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, openly criticized for the first time by the American Farm Bureau Federation today, disregarded the censure in addressing the organization's nineteenth annual convention.

Said Edward A. O'Neal in his presidential address to the convention: "Secretary Wallace favors big granary supplies, and we just can't go along with him on that idea. We know that without question big supplies will mean low market prices.

"The secretary wants a flexible bill, while we want a measure with definite controls written into the law. We hate to disagree with our good friend the secretary, but we cannot and will not compromise on this fundamental issue."

Secretary Wallace took no cognizance of President O'Neal's remarks. Referring to farm legislation in congress, Wallace said there were good points in the bill pending in the senate and the one passed by the house.

GOVERNMENT WINS RIGHT TO REDUCE BOND RATES

Treasury Will Not Take Advantage of Supreme Court Ruling.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The majority of the supreme court has ruled that a legal avenue today for government to refund $5,000,000 of outstanding gold bonds without interest, but Secretary of the Treasury told reporters the government was doing nothing to carry out such a refunding.

The justices agreed that the government had acted lawfully in refusing to pay interest on the bonds, but they refused to issue new bonds bearing lower interest than the $5,000,000 of gold still outstanding, and to release the gold obligations with proceeds of the new issues.

A press conference, however, Secretary of the Treasury said he had done nothing toward refunding the bonds and had no decision as to whether he would be called in the argument of the case.

The court decided, Solicitor General Stanley Reed estimated, that the government could save $350,000 by refunding the outstanding securities at lower interest rates.

Reed said the administration would like to effect a refunding, especially at a time when it is stressing the need for the budget, but that it is wary of disturbing the confidence of insurance companies and large bondholders.

ATHENS FIRM DENIES PATMAN VIOLATION

Price Discrimination Hearing Opened by Federal Trade Commission.

Purchases for the Webb Crawford Company, Athens wholesalers, were not based on consideration of profits to the Daniel Brokerage Company, E. L. Weir, vice president of the wholesale firm, testified yesterday as the Federal Trade Commission opened a hearing on a complaint charging the two Athens companies and nine other firms with violation of the Robinson-Patman act relating to price discrimination.

Weir declared that he purchased for the Webb Crawford Company from the firm offering the best prices or other advantages and that "consideration of profits to the Daniel Brokerage Company did not enter."

The company official testified that all things being equal, he would prefer the Daniel Brokerage Company, but cited an instance of the purchase of meat at a higher price than that firm quoted because he could obtain it elsewhere in smaller quantity.

He denied computing the pos-

Remove your hat in court—or else.

Such was the order of Judge Jesse M. Wood in Fulton criminal court yesterday.

As the hearing opened, John Darsey, commission attorney, rejected a defense statement of facts in the case offered in an effort to confine arguments to a question of the law involved.

Max Michael, of Athens, and Edgar Watkins of Atlanta, represented the defense before Examiner John Keenan.

STATE WILL TAKE INSANE AT TOWER

Rivers and Dr. Oden Prom- ise Co-operation to Fulton Delegation.

Governor Rivers and Dr. John W. Oden, superintendent of the state hospital at Milledgeville, yesterday pledged full support to officials of Fulton county seeking removal of 25 insane persons now being held at the Fulton tower.

The Governor told the delegation headed by County Commissioners George Longino and Ed L. Almand, that the hospital would take the insane persons to Milledgeville as speedily as possible. Later Dr. Oden and Dr. J. C. Blalock, county physicians, examined a number of those confined to determine which shall be taken first.

Speaking for the delegation, Commissioner Longino thanked the Governor and Dr. Oden.

"We are well pleased with the co-operation shown Fulton county by the state," the commissioner said. "We realize the crowded condition of the Milledgeville hospital but hope that those persons now confined in our jail can be cared for soon."

INSTALLMENT IV.

Philip had heard, too. His jaw sharpened as he saw color wash over Karen's face. Poor child, he thought. It was his fault. He shouldn't have brought her. He should have known there would be a pack of snobs here! But he had only meant to be kind. "I'm going," she said in a tight voice. "So am I. I'm taking you home."

He took her arm. "I brought you and I'm taking you home."

On the elevator she kept her eyes down, fighting hot angry tears. "Since when has Philip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" and the response, "Since Lilyan Kane went to England. Didn't you know?" drummed against her brain.

It had begun to rain again lightly. On the street they walked quickly to his car and when she was beside him, he turned to her. Her eyes were shining with tears. He didn't speak for a moment because he didn't remember when he had ever thought a girl beautiful when she was crying.

"Forgive me," he said. "I didn't know it would be as bad as that."

"But what she said was true! I—must seem very cheap to you." Suddenly her anger dried her tears. "You were only amusing yourself. You thought it was a joke to take a stage-struck girl to a big party and introduce her to Brenda Bond? You knew I'd be different and create attention!" She was shaking. The staring eyes, the smiling mouths, the lifted brows were still painfully clear.

"I think you are being unfair," Philip said. "You're tired. I'll take you home."

All during the drive he wondered if he should offer to help her. He envied her that somehow he felt responsible for her. But there was nothing he could do for her now. Moreover, Lilyan might hear that he had befriended a lovely young girl. She might not hear the correct story and misinterpret it. No, better let it end tonight, and let Karen Mallare go her way. He would keep her in mind and make a note of her address. Selfish, of course, but it was the wise and sane thing to do.

There was no one in the apartment house lobby. Karen held out her hand and Philip took it and held it. And all at once she knew that this was a magical moment, that this was unlike anything that had ever happened to her before. She was not falling in love with him! She would not! But already she knew that while he might walk out of her life tonight, he would never completely walk out of her heart. Deny it, her mind said. You can't deny it, her heart answered.

He smiled. "Are you still angry? I'm terribly sorry." He put his hand under her chin. "Keep it up, Karen. Keep it high. It's a proud, fighting chin that goes with a proud, fighting heart." He would probably never see her again. Even if she were gifted, she would be lost among countless others also gifted who never made the grade. She would work at something else and meet a boy and get married.

Karen said, "Good night, Philip." But she did not linger, knowing she could not bear to see him drive away.

Philip went back to Mrs. Ward's party.

Karen knocked on the door of Roxanne's apartment. Roxanne, wearing a pale blue satin dressing gown, opened it.

"Oh, hello, Karen. Come in. I haven't been in long. I knocked at your door but got no answer. How was the show?" She laughed. "Small town girls shouldn't be out so late."

"More has happened to me to-night than happened in 20 years in Harrison," Karen said. She took off her hat, ran her fingers through her dark hair, sank into a big down chair, and told Roxanne what had happened tonight.

"Philip Ashley?" Roxanne almost shouted. Then she laughed and her husky laugh again. "Say, you don't need anybody to tell you how to get along! Landed in New York last night and tonight you meet a playwright, go to a swell party, and meet Brenda Bond. What kind of person is Brenda Bond?"

"Brenda Bond isn't as young as I thought she was," Karen replied. "She's beautiful and blonde and gracious. Philip Ashley was probably bored and I looked stupid and contrived. I didn't ask him to do anything for me and he didn't offer. He thinks I'll get disgusted and go home. But I don't have a home. And I don't want his help."

Roxanne nodded. "That's the way to talk. I don't know him but about him, he acts, too. Did you know that? He was in one of his plays last year with Brenda Bond. He was up on the roof a couple weeks ago. He's good-looking. Very good-looking."

Then Roxanne knew! Quietly she said, "No, he isn't married. From what I gather, he's a pretty swell person. He's with Brenda Bond a lot but it isn't a romance. She's at least 10 years older than he is. You'd better," Roxanne said steadily, "forget him."

"I will."

But Roxanne knew she wouldn't.

Later, when Roxanne lay thinking of a tall young man in Richmond, Karen was staring in the darkness of the small room remembering everything that Philip Ashley had said. At no other time in her life had she ever felt quite so small and alone. In Harrison it had seemed so perfectly simple to come to New York and go on the stage. Other girls had. She had read stories about them. But where did you begin? How did you get started? Then, remembering again Philip's bronzed head and smile, she thought: "Some day you'll find me again and remember tonight. Some day..."

Driving back to Helene Ward's, Philip was thinking of the girl he loved, of Lilyan Kane. Lovely Lilyan, with her dark red hair, and eyes that changed colors, and smiling red mouth. In late winter they had met and loved and planned to be married in the summer. But a month ago Lilyan's father, vacationing in London, had been taken gravely ill and she had hurried to him. Now, after a month, he was still critically ill and she had scarcely left his bedside.

Mrs. Ward's party was still in full swing when Philip got back, more people had arrived. Many were dancing. For the second time tonight, nodding and speaking to people as he crossed the wide, luxuriously furnished room, he came to Brenda.

"You—again?" she asked, laughing. "Please take me home, Philip. I came with Craig but he had a call. Famous surgeons shouldn't attempt a social life. I've been trying to think of an excuse to get away. I'm really too tired to enjoy a party tonight."

She went away and came back wearing a long black velvet cape trimmed with ermine. They said good night to Mrs. Ward and left. Riding toward her apartment, Brenda asked: "Where did you find the beautiful, dark-haired girl, Philip? She was much too nice for Helene's crowd. She made most of us feel old and tired and used up," she laughed quietly. "She can wear her hair parted in the center—something I can't do."

"Somebody made a brilliant crack about my having picked her up. She heard it and she was humiliated and angry. But as a matter of fact, I did." He told her about it and said, "You know, she didn't ask me to help her. Prob-

THE CATACOMBS OF ROME.

With a party of about 40 tourists, I entered the Catacombs of St. Sebastian. These are perhaps the most important of all the catacombs around Rome, though not the largest. Both St. Peter and St. Paul are said to have been buried in them.

A catacomb is a burial place of a special kind. It consists of a tunnel with openings alongside it for tombs.

A scene in the Catacomb of St. Sebastian.

Each member of the party was given a thin candle, or taper, about six inches long. We lighted these when we entered the first long, dark tunnel. A monk served as a guide, and answered questions.

Most of the tomb openings were empty, but here and there we saw a skull and bones, or a few bones without the skull. We walked in single file, for the tunnel is narrow.

Before long, we saw a branch tunnel. There are dozens of tunnels in the Catacombs of St. Sebastian. We followed only a few of them, but must have walked about three-quarters of a mile. Near the end of our journey guide pointed out the exact place where Peter and Paul are believed to have been buried.

The Catacombs of St. Callixtus are larger than those of St. Sebastian. They are the burial place of nine popes who lived 1,600 to 1,700 years ago. The names of St. Cecilia, known as the patron saint of music, were there for seven centuries.

Thousands of people, besides those mentioned were buried in the Catacombs of St. Callixtus. The names of most of them are not known, but they were Christians.

More than 10 miles of tunnels in the St. Callixtus catacombs have been explored. They contain several underground chapels. Think of all the work that went into cutting those tunnels! For miles they go through a rock.

The Catacombs of Rome were not only cemeteries—they were hiding places as well. During early centuries of the Christian faith, some Roman emperors were cruel toward Christians. Orders to hunt them down were sent from time to time. Many were captured and sent to the arena to be victims of wild beasts. Others escaped by running into the catacombs.

Frank Patrick, Brother of Petrel Mentor, Named Backfield Coach at South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Don C. McCallister was retained tonight as head football coach at the University of South Carolina with Frank Patrick, star fullback of the University of Pittsburgh Panthers, named as backfield coach for the 1938 season.

This announcement was made in a statement by the committee on student affairs of the university board of trustees after a meeting that lasted several hours.

By BILL BON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (AP)—Don Budge with all of the indis-

unwavering decisiveness on one of the most overhead smashes, today took rank as the nation's No. 1 athlete of the year.

The carrot-topped Californian, hero of America's recapture of the Davis cup, national singles champion and triple winner at Wimbledon, was elected "head man" or 1937 by 30 of the 51 leading sports writers taking part in the seventh annual Associated Press poll. The addition of other votes in the second and third place gave Magdigo, now carrying on his conquests in Australia, a total of 103 points.

Nearest to the lanky coast ace, who wasn't even mentioned in last year's voting, were two year-long rivals of the diamond, Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees. Di Magdigo each got three first-place votes, but the St. Louis slugger, who led the National season of 1938."

NO COMMENT.

President J. Rion McKissick, ex-officio chairman of the committee, and committee members declined to comment on the situation beyond the force of the statement.

They would not say whether they talked with Harry Mehre, who resigned recently as head football coach at the University of Georgia, but Mehre was known to have been here today.

No statement was made on the salaries to be paid McCallister, but he is one more year here under his present contract, and his assistants.

With tennis and baseball accounted for, football contributed the next two members in the list of "also-rans." First-place nominations gave Byron (Whizzer) White, of Colorado a 4-2 edge over Clint Frank, of Yale. Better support in the lower brackets, however, won for the Duke 31-15 margin over his fellow all-America from the Rockies.

453 PASSENGERS FROM S. S. HOOVER TAKEN OFF 2 ISLES

Survivors Safe Aboard the President McKinley and Start for Manila.

MANILA, Dec. 13.—(P)—Salvage ships stood by the grounded luxury liner President Hoover tonight while her passengers, picked up from two lonely mid-Pacific isles, steamed toward Manila in the safety of a rescue vessel, the President McKinley.

The Dollar Line said immediate attempts would be made to refloat the $8,000,000 liner, which ran hard aground last Friday midnight.

The McKinley carried the Hoover's 134 cabin passengers and 319 from the third class. It was to reach Manila Wednesday night. Most of the Hoover's crew will be put aboard the President Pierce tomorrow.

One Hoover passenger, Roy A. Read, former Twin Falls (Idaho) publisher, said there was not the slightest evidence of disorder and little apparent nervousness among those aboard as the big ship struck. Only "three gentle bumps" were felt, he said, "such as might have been made by a small boat striking a sand bar."

Read told how the passengers, after learning the craft was snagged on the rocky reef, "ate their breakfasts and then began to fill lifeboats previously put over the side." The passengers spent the next two days in a small village.

HEARING CALLED ON BACK TAX FEES

House Bill Attacking Policy To Be Aired.

The proposed house resolution, to declare Georgia's contract with an individual to collect ad valorem taxes on unreturned intangibles for the past seven years against public policy, will be discussed at a public meeting of the house state of the republic committee at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

G. Seals Aiken, president of the Georgia Taxpayers' Relief Association, who filed a petition for injunction seeking to have the contract declared illegal, asked last night that all interested taxpayers attend the meeting.

Under terms of the contract, John Armistead, tax expert, was to receive 20 per cent of all back taxes on intangibles thus collected. Aiken estimated that this sum would be approximately $20,000,000 and contends salaried state officials are kept continuously on the pay roll to collect these same taxes.

STATE PAY ROSTER RISES 1,528 IN 1937

Salaries Total $7,259,235
Until November 15.

The state's pay roll was increased by 1,528 persons from January 1 to November 15. State Auditor Tom Wisdom reported to the house of representatives yesterday.

The total amount of salaries paid out in the period was $7,259,235, while traveling expenses were listed at $634,037.

Breaking down the increase in personnel, Wisdom reported that 552 employees were put on in new agencies created by the 1937 general assembly; 158 were added in the enlargement of departments and agencies; 695 in the highway department as the result of changes in the number of highway divisions, and 136 in the public health department, which was given an increased appropriation.

Other departments showed a reduction of 13 employees, he reported. Wisdom's schedule of employees and salaries was requested in a house resolution introduced by Elliott, of Muscogee, who declared governmental economy should be effected if possible.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(P)—One of America's wealthiest industrialists, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, today "turned back" $10,000,000 in personal profits to advance "the interests of the community at large" and to promote a "wider knowledge of 'basic economic truths.'"

Almost unprecedented in its specifically stated action of "turning back" privately earned wealth to what he described as the general welfare of the masses, Sloan's gift will be distributed through the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation.

ITALY CAN'T QUIT NOW, LEAGUE SAYS

Two Years Required After Notification.

GENEVA, Dec. 13.—(P)—Leading Italian officials of the League of Nations, including Deputy Secretary General Massimo Pilotti, tendered their resignations tonight. Their action followed the League's notification to Italy that her dramatic withdrawal could not become effective for two years under the terms of the League covenant.

Joseph Avenol, secretary general, sent a telegram to "the minister of foreign affairs, Rome," saying a member might withdraw after two years' notice of intention "provided all its international obligations and all its obligations under the covenant shall have been fulfilled."

League officials construed Avenol's telegram to mean Italy must continue to pay her dues for two years.

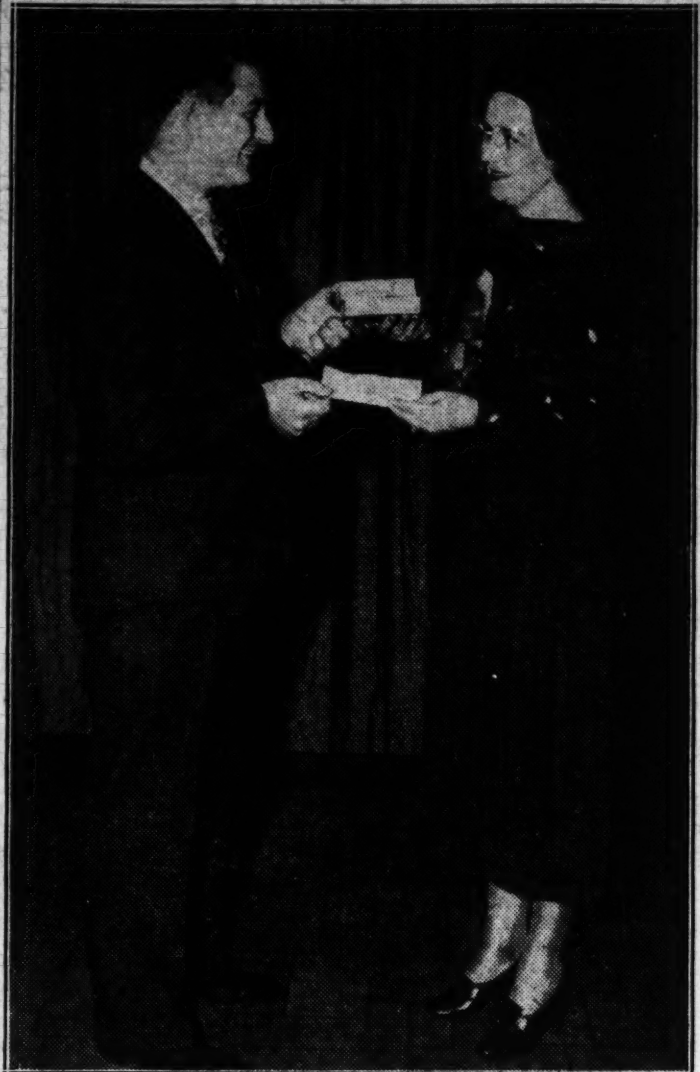

Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano informed the League that Italy had withdrawn, not merely declaring an intention to resign.

Carols To Be Broadcast Tonight In Big Brother Charity Appeal

Outstanding Atlanta Talent Will Appear in Program To Increase Christmas Baskets to Deserving Poor; Decatur Group To Make Plans at Dinner.

Christmas carols, to gladden the hearts of Atlanta Big Brothers in another effort to bring them to the ranks of the Big Brother army in the fifth annual charity fund drive, will be broadcast over radio station WATL tonight.

Sylvan Hills, Capitol View and Oakland City Big Brothers will begin at 8:05 o'clock a program of 19 selections, with a score of this section's best vocalists. Major L. A. Welch is in charge.

"Tune in," asks A. L. Belle Isle, Big Brother chairman, "and let the Yuletide spirit, if not your good heart, send you running to Big Brother headquarters for immediate enlistment."

A growing Big Brother charity enthusiasm, as Christmas Day draws nearer, looks promising for Atlanta's underfortunates. Those poor families, and those youngsters, grimly watching the too-rapidly-approaching day that may be just like all the rest unless Big Brothers enter into the drive to help them, will find a happy Christmas dawn. "Enlist now! Do your part to help them," is the Big Brother cry.

Decatur Big Brothers will meet tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Candler hotel, Decatur. Dinner will be served under the sponsorship of Harold Byrd Post No. 66, American Legion. All Big Brothers in Decatur are urged to attend and map plans for helping DeKalb county poor. Big Brother Vernon Frank, organizer, is in charge of reservations.

W. M. Gilleland, chairman of the paper sale scheduled for the coming Sunday, reports a favorable response to the call for volunteers to sell the Big Brother edition of The Constitution. "We need several more," he said, "to completely fill the vacancies in a number of wards." To enlist, call Main 4610, or drop by headquarters, 58 Peachtree street.

In a big rally, to make final assignments and plans for the distribution of funds, Big Brothers will meet at 7:30 o'clock Friday night at headquarters, Bell Isle announced yesterday.

'BEST' WATERWAY FORECAST FOR TVA

Engineer Says Only Great Lakes Will Surpass It.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 13.—(P)—A colonel of army engineers who spent five years studying the Tennessee river and its tributaries, asserted today that the unified Tennessee Valley Authority plan will transform the river into "the best improved inland waterway in the United States, with the exception of the Great Lakes."

The statement was part of an "offer to prove" by Colonel Lewis H. Watkins, the first witness called before a three-judge federal court by TVA attorneys in their defense against the concerted attack of 18 private utilities. The utilities rested their case Friday.

After the court had excluded Colonel Watkins' statement as "irrelevant," James Lawrence Fly, entered it as an offer to prove.

COUNTY CHIEFS ASK SOLONS FOR CASH

Association Demands Immediate Enactment of '5-Point' Plan.

Demands that the Governor and general assembly take immediate action to enact legislation to carry into effect Rivers' "five-point" program, designed to partially compensate counties for monies lost under the homestead exemption bill, were made in resolutions passed yesterday by the legislative committee and board of managers of the Association of County Commissioners.

The commissioners declared themselves "alarmed and perturbed."

Two measures they especially want passed are a bill requiring all auto owners to pay ad valorem taxes on their cars before the license tags are sold and the bill providing the state with revenue for the welfare program without forcing counties to pay more than the 10 per cent as required by law, Julius A. McCurdy, county attorney for DeKalb, said after the meeting.

'EVIDENCE' LOCAL BY MARIE DAUGH

Daughter of Slain Geo.
Back in Jail After
New York Trip.

STATESBORO, Dec. 13.—Marie Daughtry, one of five sons indicted in connection with the slaying of her wealthy father, Charlie L. Daughtry, was back in the Bulloch county jail with "documentary evidence" in her defense.

She returned here yesterday after a hurried automobile trip to New York state in custody deputy sheriff. She was accompanied by D. C. Jones, Statesboro attorney, who said he had been employed exclusively by Daughtry to represent her interests.

Previously she had been sent by Albert L. Cobb, Esq., a lawyer, who has been in as an accessory in the case. Cobb is in the Rich county jail at Augusta.

Miss Daughtry said she also called her contract with Cobb which he was to represent in collecting her share of Daughtry estate. Appraisers recently valued the estate at $49.

Judge William Woodrum, Ogeechee circuit, said Daughtry was permitted to leave the New York trip because she has documentary evidence up north that will do great deal of good in the trial case. It appears she knows where this documentary evidence is except herself.

Miss Daughtry, who disappeared from her home at Rocky Gap, in 1920, recently returned to Atlanta to surrender to authorities seeking her in connection with her father's slaying.

Her father was shot to near Rocky Ford September

Who started the rush for Soviet gold, that Lenin once said was useful only for filling teeth? Why is Stalin encouraging hundreds of thousands to join the search? Here's a personal narrative of a man who traveled 200,000 miles in Russia, bringing American methods and machinery to the U. S. S. R. He reports what he saw on his travels, and some of the queer twists he found in the Russian mind.

Northern Belles To Attend Debut Of Miss Roberts and Miss Brumby

By Sally Forth.

TWO charming northern belles, neither of whom has ever been south of the Mason and Dixon line, will add interest to the debut dance at which Helen Roberts and Ann Brumby will be formally presented to Atlanta society on Friday evening at the Capital City Country Club.

Justine Elster, of Springfield, Ohio, who was a roommate of Ann's at King-Smith Studio in Washington, D. C., will visit Ann for this special occasion and Anne Pearsall, of New York city, will be Helen's guest. The visit of Anne to Helen is the result of a happy coincidence. The visit of Anne to Helen is the result of a happy coincidence. The visit of Anne to Helen is the result of a happy coincidence.

Several other interesting visitors will be here for the debut.

their good times have been enjoyed together and they will make a charming picture as they stand with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Roy Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brumby, to meet Atlanta society. The two belles will carry similar nosegays, which will be the gifts of a group of close friends of their mothers.

Among them will be Dan and Dorothy Brumby Hanks, Ann's brother and sister from Rome. Dan Pearsall, of New York city, who has made many friends here on former visits to the city, will be Helen's guest. Mrs. William Henry Hays, of New York city, Helen's great-aunt, will be a prominent visitor, as will Ann's aunt, Miss Anne Brumby, of Cedarhurst, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Max Clotfelter, of Marietta.

CORA GANTT is going to have a visitor—the same charming Marian Latta, lovely blond daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Latta, of Nashville, Tenn., who was Cora's guest for the Tech-Vanderbilt game on October 30.

When Cora went up to Vanderbilt last year to attend the senior dance, she met Marian and the two became such congenial friends that Cora has paid her many visits since that time. Marian arrives on December 18 and returns home on Christmas Eve. She is coming at this time to attend the dance that Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hillsman are giving on December 20 for their daughter, Mary Anne.

Marian is one of Nashville's most popular debutantes this year and Cora will be her visitor on January 3 to attend the Nashville Girls' Cotillion.

AMALIE HARRINGTON, that most gifted person, is going to Griffin today to address the garden club of that city and everyone who has heard Amalie make one of her clever talks is sure the members of the organization have a real treat in store. She will talk on Christmas arrangements, and will give her hearers many helpful ideas, some of which have probably come from her fellow flower lovers in the Iris Garden Club.

The meeting will be in the form of a luncheon at the beautiful colonial home of Mrs. Lollie Pickett, who dispenses the same gracious hospitality in Griffin for which she was noted when she was one of Atlanta's most charming hostesses. During Amalie's stay in Griffin, she will be the guest of Mrs. Jesse Fort, also a former popular resident of this city.

A DELE SMITH, the two-month-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith, is off on her first visit and is proving the center of attraction in the household of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Mabey, in Camden, S. C. The Mabeyes arrived only a few days ago from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., to open their Camden home for the winter and Mr. Mabey could hardly wait for his first glimpse of his granddaughter.

Previously, Mr. Mabey had heard only glowing accounts of her from Mrs. Mabey, who was in Atlanta to greet her first granddaughter. Attracting equal interest is Lewis Monroe Jr., the adored young son of the Smiths.

The Atlantans will remain in Camden for several days and then will return home to make ready for the arrival of the Mabeyes, who will spend the holidays with them at their home on Wesley avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Mabey have frequently visited here and have formed a wide circle of friends, by whom they will be extended a cordial welcome.

T. E. L. Class Plans Party.

The T. E. L. Sunday school class of the Druid Hills Baptist church, entertain at their annual Christmas party on Friday at 2:30 o'clock at Briarcliff Manor, the estate of Mrs. Asa G. Candler Jr., in Druid Hills.

Among the interesting features planned will be the program of carol singing and a pageant of the nativity. Mrs. Mitchell Edwards is teacher of the class and Mrs. Ethan Smith is the president, and elaborate plans have been made to make the affair one of the largest ever given by the class.

College Belle Returns for Christmas

Miss Aline Cocke, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Cocke, who arrives Thursday to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents on Peachtree way. Miss Cocke is enrolled at the University of Georgia in Athens, where she is a popular member of the freshman class and belongs to the Tri Delta sorority. She will be among the college belles attending the holiday festivities of the younger set, with a number of informal parties planned in her honor.

MEALS AT PRISON COST FOUR CENTS

Superintendent, However, Says That's Ample.

Jim C. Ellis, superintendent of the city prison farm, yesterday made a discouraging announcement for prospective lawbreakers.

Meals at the prisons cost just 4 1/2 cents each for the year 1937 and that's no recommendation to anyone who contemplates infraction of the laws and ending up by drawing 30 days, more or less.

Ellis said the inmates were well fed, pointing to bumper crops at the farm and the fact much of the produce was sold and used to supplement city-grown foodstuffs.

Associated with Ellis in management of the farm are J. J. Hollis, in charge of stock, and W. I. Bone, who handles the office detail.

INTANGIBLES TAXES UNDERGO REVISION

Features Objectionable to Municipalities Changed, Visiting Mayors Told.

Two Georgia mayors, Robert M. Hitch, of Savannah, and Charlie Bowden, of Macon, here to confer with Governor Rivers and legislators, were told yesterday that features of the intangibles tax bill objectionable to municipalities were being revised.

"One amendment already agreed upon will give some 20 or 25 Georgia cities and towns a share of the intangibles tax fund," Mayor Hitch said. "It will give the cities a share of the tax which heretofore had been limited to counties or cities which maintained school districts."

Definition Changed.

Definition of intangibles also was being changed, Hitch said, to restrict the tax to stocks, bonds of corporations and real estate mortgage notes, eliminating such items as accounts receivable. He said the legislators seemed inclined to rewrite the measure so as to work no hardship on any city or town.

Hitch said he had discussed the housing program with George Hamilton, state housing chairman, and that he would ask the Savannah council to decide whether to seek an allotment of federal funds for a housing project. He said there were several approaches to Savannah through slum areas which he would like to see cleared up by providing "suitable housing for the poorer citizens."

Budget Commission.

While Hitch was in the capital, the Chatham delegation introduced a bill to create a budget commission for Savannah. He said it would place the city's finances on a budget basis, making the mayor and aldermen who vote to exceed the budget liable for the excess expenditure.

He said the bill would permit the budget to be exceeded only in cases of emergency such as a conflagration or other disaster and that such "excess" expenditure must be the first item in the succeeding year's budget.

Hitch said he would call a special session of the Savannah council to consider the plan upon his return there.
